Definite Article (Singular & Plural)

- বইটি আমার। {boiṭi amar} [The book is mine] (I count)
- বইগুলো আমার। {boigulo amar} [The books are mine] (more than 1, but the number is unknown)
- ঐ কলমটি তোমার। {oi kölomṭi tomar.} [That pen is yours.]
- ওটা তোমার কলম। {oṭa tomar kölom.} [That is your pen.]

[!NOTE]

টি {ṭi} is interchangeable with টা, খানা, খানি {ṭa, khana, khani}

গুলো {gulo} is interchangeable with গুলি {guli}

As [[Counter]] or Unit (indefinite)

টি {ṭi} is a counter when it's right after a number --

- একটি কলম দাও। {ekṭi kölom dao} [Give (me) a pen] (I count, but don't know which one. i.e. indefinite)
- দশটি বই আছে আমার। {dösṭi boi ache amar} [Ten books, I have] (more than 1, but don't know which ones. i.e. indefinite)

[!NOTE]

here টি {ṭi} is interchangeable with টা, খানা, খানি {ṭa, khana, khani}

Omitted টি {ti}

For large numbers, it's better to omit the counter টি {ti} --

- পাঁচশো কলম লাগবে আমার। {pashsho (pacsho) kölom lagbe amar.} [I need/want 500 pens.]
Sometimes for stylistic effect --
- সাত সমুদ্র, তেরো নদী। {shat shomudro, tëro nodi} [The seven seas, and thirteen rivers]
- এক দেশে ছিল এক রাজা। {ëk deshe chilo ëk raja} [(Once) there was a king in a country]

As [[Counter]] and Definite Article Simultaneously

Reverse the order to make it definite --

- হ্যাঁ, বই দুটি আছে। {hë, boi duṭi ache} [Yes, (we) have the 2 books.]
- kölom duṭi lal. [The 2 pens are red.]
- duṭi lal kölom. [2 red pens.]
- duṭi kölom dao. [Give me 2 pens.]
- kölom duṭi dao. [Give me the two pens.]

Sometimes even reversing the order is not necessary. The context makes it obvious. It can be considered stylistic --

- সোমবার দুই দেশের রাষ্ট্রপতি বৈঠক করেন। {shombar dui desher rashṭropoti boiṭhok kören} [On Monday, the presidents of the two countries held a meeting.]
